Most of us know when we are mentally and physically well, but sometimes we need a little extra support to keep well. Take 5 steps to wellbeing is an approach based on evidence¹ that can develop the wellbeing of individuals and communities.

There are five simple steps to help maintain and improve wellbeing. The messages are straightforward and if adopted in a person’s life can make them feel better and function well.

Wellbeing is important for everyone. Developing habits for wellbeing is best done when you are feeling ok rather than waiting until things are difficult. Taking these five actions regularly will help improve your wellbeing.

This booklet is aimed at community based organisations to help them consider how Take 5 can be integrated and promoted locally and we have included some ideas and tools that may be helpful to you.

How you can use Take 5 steps to wellbeing to support your community

- Consider what is already available in your area that supports any of the Take 5 messages shown above
- Make people in your community aware of Take 5 and how it can benefit them
- Include information on wellbeing and Take 5 in community publications and press releases
- Consider how activities and programmes you have developed or are developing relate to Take 5
- Use the Take 5 logos and messages wherever you can in things you do to promote activities and services

Consider what is already available

Sometimes people think they have to go elsewhere to find ways to do something active or to socialise, when most times the community you live in is rich with all manner of opportunities. Lots of resources are available in your community, much of it is free. These may be activities or services provided by organisations, public facilities or naturally occurring things in their environment that you may take for granted.

Promote Take 5 steps to wellbeing in your community

Promoting Take 5 in your community is not necessarily about doing new things; there are likely to be plenty of things there already that support Take 5 and it’s a matter of showing your community how they link to the Take 5 approach.

Map Take 5 steps to wellbeing to your community

Map what is available in your local community against the Take 5 steps, including what you provide. This will build a picture of your community and help show what things are already available that you could promote to community members. See the Community Mapping Tool on page 11.

Alternatively use a map to show activities and resources in your area or you could produce a monthly calendar that profiles what is available against each of the Take 5 steps (see the example Take 5 Community Calendar on page 13).

Use Take 5 steps to wellbeing to plan your work

You may identify things you think are particularly relevant to Take 5 and would like to do more of or that there is less available for some of the steps and you would like to develop something to address that. The Take 5 Project Planning Tool on page 12 can help you plan activities using a Take 5 format.
Deliver Take 5 steps to wellbeing activities or programmes

There are lots examples of Take 5 based activities that others have used that may be of use to you. There are also resources available that you can incorporate, like posters, awareness session plans, powerpoint presentations, Take 5 artwork.

You will find these at the end of this guide

When planning any activity it is beneficial to know whether it has achieved what you intended.

There will be activities that are designed primarily about Take 5 steps to wellbeing like an awareness event. However there will be many activities that were not designed with Take 5 in mind but where it is a secondary outcome. For example a project may happen to respond to a specific issue in an area, like a community clean-up because of a litter problem, but this would also support Be active, Give and Take notice.

You probably already have methods to evaluate work that you do, and we are suggesting you think about how you can include Take 5 within that process.

If you think about this at the planning stage you could develop specific Take 5 related outcomes and include ways to assess these in your evaluation process. You may include general questions about the Take 5 messages like the example below.

Tell us how today’s activity contributed to any of the Take 5 steps to wellbeing
Measuring wellbeing

You may consider using some form of measurement that is specifically related to wellbeing. Wellbeing can be understood as how people feel and how they function both on a personal and a social level, and how they evaluate their lives as a whole.

There are quite a number of examples of specific tools for this. The New Economics Foundation (NEF) recommend three short sets of questions should you wish to use them.

Other tips for evaluation

Including some demographic information e.g. gender, age, ethnicity or postcode, will allow you to consider whether there are particular factors about the participants that are relevant to the data results.

Consider using methods that will give you both quantitative and qualitative information. Quantitative tools like yes/no questions or scales allow you to measure numbers and frequency. Qualitative methods such as open questions in questionnaires, focus groups, consultation events or interviews, focus on meaning and experience.

If you can gather information at more than one stage e.g. before and after a programme or at intervals, such as an annual survey, you will be able to identify impact. You will find a sample evaluation form on page 14.
Some examples of Take 5 steps to wellbeing in action

Shankill Women’s Centre: Crochet Class

The Centre has incorporated Take 5 steps to wellbeing into a range of programmes for their beneficiaries, including a crochet class, aqua aerobics, armchair aerobics, sewing and beading. The crochet class was created in 2005 in response to feedback from women that were using the centre. They wanted to learn how to do crochet and to do something together. Many of the items they create are donated to raise money for the centre.

“The women have reported that they enjoyed learning the new skills….. and that their confidence has grown as they never thought they would be able to make the things they are now making.”
Trish Boyd, Health and Wellbeing Project Manager

“I never thought I would be able to learn to crochet but the tutor is so patient with me. My family can’t believe what I can make. My family were worried about me because I didn’t get out much but now I have my class and I have made new friends.” Group user.

East Belfast Community Development Agency: World Mental Health Day Event

A half-day wellbeing event was held to mark World Mental Health Day 2016 run in partnership with local homeless hostels and support providers to attract people with experience of homelessness.

Participants received the Take 5 flyer and had the opportunity to take part in free activities under Take 5 steps to wellbeing: Take notice - massage and relaxation workshops; Give to others - students offering free nail treatments collected donations for a homeless charity; Keep learning - healthy cooking workshops and recipes to take home; Be active - yoga and salsa dance; and Connect - information stands provided the opportunity to meet local service providers and at the end of the event there was a lunch for all participants and providers.

“I would like to see more events like this. I have thoroughly enjoyed it. I am now going to go to the salsa class and the relaxation class next week. It’s broadened my horizons.” Event attendee
Bridge of Hope: Take 5 Resilience Training

Bridge of Hope, as a department of Ashton Community Trust, delivers holistic health and wellbeing services to support and encourage wellbeing, with over 18,000 individuals having accessed services. It developed and delivered this course in recent years to mirror the key themes involved in the Take 5 campaign.

“Take 5 is a simple yet really useful framework for your health and life. The benefits of Take 5 are significant if you consider that a person can potentially lengthen their lifespan by 7.5 years if they incorporate this straightforward philosophy into their lives.”
—Irene Sherry, ACT Head of Victims & Mental Health Services

The course involves learning how to use Take 5 at an individual level. It also encourages the development of maintenance strategies and how to effectively build a ‘5 steps to wellbeing toolkit’ for your life and circumstances. The training introduces local and practical ways people can use the 5 steps, sharing tips and ideas, promoting local services and opportunities that can help integrate Take 5 into their lives.

“Brilliant workshop, thoroughly enjoyable. I have gained a greater awareness and developed skills to allow me to deal with life”
—Course Participant

West Belfast Partnership Board: Take 5 in the West

This was an initiative to localise Belfast Strategic Partnership’s Take 5 campaign in West Belfast and promote these to the community. All of the agencies who took part undertook to “assertively” publicise the work of other partners to those they were in contact with.

A key learning point was the ability to undertake a rapid building of collaboration across the sector at low/no cost. While the initial focus was on existing activity, a review of the final programme showed 30% new or bespoke activity had been generated.

“The Take 5 in the West publication was extremely useful as it made it possible for me to navigate our clients towards community interventions in a non-stigmatizing way focusing on resilience rather than dependency.”—Sue Wilson, Mental Health Hub Co-ordinator.

“A legacy has been the strategic focus in one of the core areas of Take 5, namely lifelong learning. I have established a core group of 12 agencies who are actively involved in using the same approach to highlight the current good work happening in the west of the city.”
—Dermot Glackin, WBPB Health and Wellbeing Coordinator
